Dear NLS colleagues,

I am pleased to announce the launch of the new NLS internal newsletter.

The very first issue is out and from now on we will create original content each month.

As NLS has seats in different countries and many of you cannot be in regular contact with colleagues located elsewhere, we hope to give you better inside access into what we are doing globally and locally via our newsletter.

What could we possibly need to tell you every month?

Actually there is much more going on in at NLS than you might imagine.

Your ideas and creativity are also much appreciated. If you have topics you would like to share with us, please get in touch with our Corporate Communication team in Vienna. Our colleagues are looking forward to your input.

I would also like you to follow our social media channels (they are listed below). It will also be exciting to see how you are engaging with our content as we go along, so your feedback is more than welcome. We will try to continually improve our content.

Enjoy reading!

Yours,

Frank

NLS at LaFleur's D.C. Symposium in Washington

Our colleagues had a busy time in Washington D.C, visiting LaFleur's symposium themed "lottery content innovators". Pall Palson and Agnieszka Rylska gave a presentation on how innovation can be kept alive (using Heavy Mental as a case study) in a rapidly growing company. NLS hosted a very successful Austrian coffee break and our colleagues were invited to a VIP tour through the US Capitol.

Share your local traditions with us!

NLS is a multinational company with offices all around Europe. We want you to bring closer customs and traditions of the countries where we are active in through the exploration of e.g. local cuisines. Our first presentation is a traditional Austrian dessert called Kaiserschmarrn, a caramelized pancake split into pieces made with rum-soaked raisins, eggs, flour, sugar, and butter. Mahlzeit!
